2- The Life of the Ancient Egyptians

The life of the ancient Egyptians was very different from nowadays. Their kings (the pharaohs) were very powerful. The pharaohs built huge tombs to be buried in. The Egyptians thought that the pharaoh was a god.

They did not wear many clothes. Men wore a kind of short skirt. Women wore long dresses. Men wore open sandals. They shaved their heads because the weather was hot.

In ancient Egypt, women did not go out to work. They stayed at home. Most men were farmers. Some men were builders or fishermen. The children did the same jobs as their parents. Girls stayed at home with their mothers. They learned to look after their families. Boys worked with their fathers. They only went to school if they wanted to be scribes (writers). Children played running and jumping games. Their small toys were made of wood.

Answer the following questions :

1. The pharaohs believed in the life after death. What did they do as a result of that?

Marco got a letter from his Uncle Ben, the airplane pilot. Uncle Ben has traveled all over the world.

Dear Marco,

This is my third time visiting Paris, and I think it is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. Paris, as I'm sure you know, is the capital of France. Today I walked along the Avenue des Champs-Elysees, which is the most famous street in Paris. I think it may be the most famous street in the world. It is lined with beautiful trees, fountains, and flowers. There are shops, theaters, and restaurants, and many sidewalk cafes.

I had a wonderful lunch at one of the sidewalk cafes. The pastry I had for dessert was especially delicious. Paris is known for its fine French cooking. I noticed on the café menu that they serve one of the most popular French dishes, which is escargot. Snails, in other words! I don't think I'll be trying that while I am here, though.

When you think of Paris, you probably think of the Eiffel Tower. Anyone visiting Paris has to see the Eiffel Tower. You can see the top of the Eiffel Tower from anywhere in the city. It is almost 1000 feet tall. When was built, it was the tallest building in the world. You can walk up the stairs to the top, or you can take an elevator. From the top you can look out across all of Paris. It is an amazing sight!

Tomorrow I am going to the Louvre Museum. It is one of the largest museums in the world. Once it was the French King's palace. Now, it is home to some of the most famous artworks in the world. I am looking forward to seeing the "Mona Lisa" painting. Have you seen pictures of it? It was painted over 500 years ago! There have been many poems and songs written about it. The woman in the painting has a little half-smile. To me, that makes it seem like she has a secret that she isn't going to tell.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ben

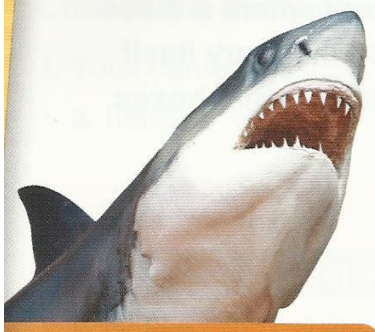
The Truth About Sharks



Pre-Reading

Look at the picture and answer the questions.

1. Do you like the ocean?
2. Are you afraid of sharks?
3. Have you ever seen a shark?

Track 3

There are many different kinds of sharks. The largest is the Great White Shark. These sharks can grow to be more than 6 meters long. That is even larger than a car. They also have more than 3,000 very sharp teeth. They can find food by smelling it from very far away. These scary and amazing sharks also swim much faster than you or I can run.

However, people exaggerate the danger of Great White Sharks. The truth is that sharks are usually very afraid of people. If they attack, it is because they are scared or curious. Usually, Great White Sharks want to stay far away from us. Actually, few people die from shark bites. Still, every year, a small number of people are hurt in accidents with sharks.

In fact, Great White Sharks really need our help. Every year, around the world, there are fewer of them that survive. Fishermen sometimes take a lot of fish from the ocean. And then, these sharks have nothing left to eat. If we are not careful, one day there could be no Great White Sharks left. That is very sad!

Key vocabulary

- exaggerate
  to make something seem greater or bigger than it really is
- attack
  to start a fight with someone or something
- curious
  wanting to know more about something
- fewer

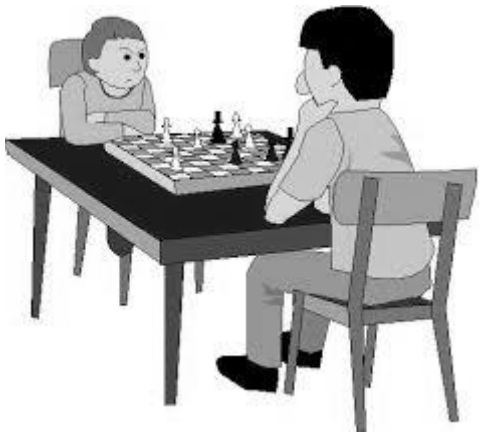
Test Chess



Chess is called the game of kings. It hasbeen around for a long time. People have been playing it for over 500 years. Chess is based on an even older game from India. The chess we play today is from Europe.

Chess is a two-player game. One player uses the white pieces. The other uses the black pieces. Each piece moves in a special way. One piece is called the king. Each player has one. The players take turns moving their pieces. If a player lands on a piece, he or she takes it. The game ends when a player loses his or her king. There are a few more rules, but those are the basics.

Some people think that chess is more than a game. They think that it makes the mind stronger. Good chess players use their brains. They take their time. They think about what will happen next. These skills are useful in life and in chess. Chess is like a work out for the mind .

You don't always have lots of time to think when playing chess. There is a type of chess with short time limits. It's called blitz chess. In blitz chess, each player gets ten minutes to use for the whole game. Your clock runs during your turn. You hit the time clock after your move. This stops your clock. It also starts the other player's clock. If you run out of time, you lose. Games of blitz chess are fast-paced.

Chess is not just for people. Computers have been playing chess since the 1970s. At first they did not play well. They made mistakes. As time went on they grew stronger.In 1997, a computer beat the best player in the world for the first time. It was a computer called Deep Blue. Deep Blue was big. It took up a whole room. By 2006 a cell phone could beat the best players in the world. Chess sure has come a long way. Don't you think so?

Answer the following questions :

1. How does a game of chess end according to the text?

2. How is blitz chess different from regular chess?

How might playing chess be good for people?

4. Why might blitz chess be more challenging to play than regular chess?

---

5. What is the author's purpose in writing the second paragraph?

a. To explain the rules of chess

b. To compare different types of games

c. To talk about game pieces

d. To persuade people to play chess

6. How long have people been playing chess?

b. Over 100 years

b. Over 500 years

c. Over 1000 years

d. Over 5000 years

7. Where did the game that chess is based on come from?

c. Europe

b. America

c. India

d. All of these

Track 1

Key vocabulary

- popular liked by many people
- chocolate bar a rectangle of chocolate
- factory a building where things are made
- package something that is packed and wrapped or boxed
- international worldwide

Do you like to eat chocolate? Chocolate is one of the world's most popular foods. Nowadays, people from all over the world eat chocolate. People spend over 10 billion dollars on it every year. In the US, people eat over 1.4 billion pounds of chocolate every year. That's a lot of chocolate!

Chocolate comes from the seeds of cacao trees. Cacao trees first grew in South America. Today you can find them all over the world. Thousands of years ago, people in Mexico loved chocolate so much that, at times, they used it as money or for trade. They even had a god of chocolate named Ek-Chuah. Every year, they killed dogs and sang special songs to make Ek-Chuah happy.

Did you know that long ago, people liked to drink chocolate? They didn't eat it. In 1847, a man in England, named Joseph Fry, made the first chocolate bar. After that, people started to eat chocolate instead of just drinking it.

Almost half of the world's cacao trees are found in West Africa. In fact, 70% of the world's cacao bean supply is from here. Furthermore, factories in Holland and the US cook and package most of the world's chocolate. It is really an international food!

Answer the following questions :

1 From which plant does chocolate come?

2 Joseph Fry is famous. Highlight the reason from the passage.

---

3 In your opinion, why did the author call chocolate an “international” food?

---

Black Friday

The day after Thanks giving is the start of the holiday shopping season. Thanks giving is always on a Thursday, so the day after is a Friday. This day has come to be known as Black Friday. It has been the busiest shopping day of the year since 2005.

Most stores offer great deals on Black Friday.They try to attract shoppers with big discounts. Some items like TVs are much cheaper than usual.

Black Friday is a great time to get good deals. The problem is that there are not enough low- priced items to go around. Each store may only have a few. These items are in high demand.

People stand in long lines to get such great deals. They may line up hours before a store opens. They may be hoping to get a low price on a TV or laptop, but not everyone will get one. Some people leave disappointed.

The situation can be tense. Some Black Friday events have been violent. Large, eager crowds have trampled workers. Fights have broken outover toys or people cutting in line. But most Black Friday events are safe and fun if you plan on going, expect large crowds.

So where does the name "Black Friday" come from? It was first used in Philadelphia in the 1950s. The police called this day Black Friday because of the heavy traffic it drew. In the 1960s, stores tried to rename the day "Big Friday." It did not stick. The name "Black Friday" continued to spread across the country.It seems that it is here to stay.

Now people all over the country take part in the event known as Black Friday. It is even spreading to other parts of the world. Stores have held Black Friday events in the U.K., Australia, and Brazil since 2012.

The Woodcutter and his Axe

A Woodcutter was hard at work beside a river. He chopped down a tree and chopped off the branches, one by one. He stacked the small branches in one pile and the large branches in another pile. It was hard work, and he grew tired. By accident, he dropped his axe into the deep river. He sat down on the river bank, and put his head in his hands.

The Woodcutter heard a sound in the nearby bushes, He lifted his head and was amazed to see a strange little man dressed all in green. He thought perhaps it was one of the Wood Gnomes of the fairy tales, and he was quite correct. “Why are you so upset?” asked the Wood Gnome. The Woodcutter explained what had happened, and the Wood Gnome walked closer to the bank of the deep river and dived right in headfirst. In moments he climbed out, carrying a golden axe. “Is this your axe, sir?” asked the Wood Gnome. The Woodcutter shook his head with sorrow. The Wood Gnome dived back into the river, and came up with a silver axe. “Is this your axe?” he asked. Again, the woodcutter shook his head, and again the Wood Gnome dived into the river.

This time, he came out of the river with the Woodcutter’s own axe, and the Woodcutter shouted out with joy. The Wood Gnome told the Woodcutter that he must keep the gold and silver axes as well as his own, as a reward for his honesty. The Woodcutter went home and told all of his friends what had happened. He showed them the gold and silver axes.

Date:----------

The next day, one of those friends went to the place by the river that the Woodcutter had described. He threw his axe into the river, and sat down on the riverbank and buried his head in his bands. The Wood Gnome appeared, and asked him why he was so upset. The Woodcutter's friend said that he had dropped his axe into the river by mistake, and the Wood Gnome quickly dived into the river, and came up with a golden axe. "Is this your axe?" the Wood Gnome asked, and the man reached for it greedily, saying that it was the very axe he had lost. The Wood Gnome kept the golden axe, and left without going back into the river for the axe that the dishonest man had thrown there on purpose.

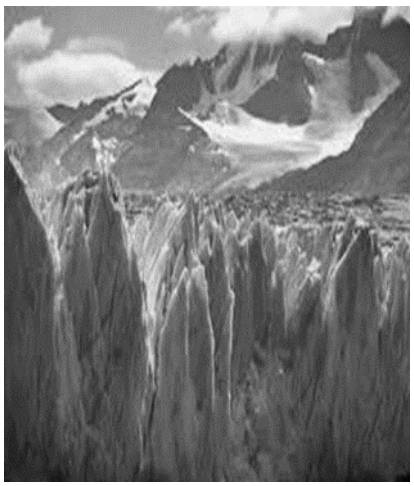
Glaciers

Glaciers are made up of fallen snow that, over many years, compresses into large, thickened ice masses. Glaciers form when snow remains in one location long enough to transform into ice. Presently, glaciers occupy about 10 percent of the world's total land area, with most located in Polar Regions like Antarctica, Greenland, and the Canadian Arctic.



Glaciers also exist high in mountain ranges such as the Himalayas and the Andes. Although glaciers are made of ice and appear to be sitting still, they are actually moving. The weight of a glacier will cause it to move slowly down hill, sort of like a very slow moving river.

The speed of glaciers varies widely with some moving as slow as a few feet a year while others may move several feet per day. Scientists have given names to different typesof glaciers. Here are a few of the main types:

Ice cap - An ice cap is formed when ice completely covers an area of land such that no part of the land, not even mountain peaks, poke through the top of the ice cap.
Polar - A polar glacier is one that is formed in an area where the temperature is always below the freezing point.

Most of the country of Greenland is covered with a giant ice cap that is nearly two miles thick in areas. Because of friction, the top of a glacier moves faster than the bottom. At over 125 miles long, Bering Glacier in Alaska is the longest glacier in the United States.
